

U.S. POSTAL INSPECTION SERVICE CRIME ALERT

Chief Postal Inspector Targeted in Phony E-Mail

Good things can happen to good people, but did you really believe that Chief Postal Inspector William R. Gilligan was sending you "an authentic ATM card" good for $1.5 million? We hope not, because Postal Inspectors have confirmed it's just a scam.

A phony e-mail supposedly sent by Chief Postal Inspector William R. Gilligan notifies you that your "parcel from Africa" was intercepted and that you should "not hasitate [sic] to remit $79" to receive the card. The e-mail includes a return mailing address of the New York Division of the Postal Inspection Service.

If you have information on this or similar scams, report it online at <https://postalinspectors.uspis.gov/> or call 1-877-876-2455, option 3.
